Board of Governors

The most recent meeting of the University's Board of Governors was held at the Banff Centre on 7 October in conjunction with the fifth annual Minister of Advanced Education Boards of Governors of Alberta Universities Seminar.

After a brief report by D.M. Ritchie, Chairman of the Finance Committee, Jack Kennedy presented the monthly report of the Building Committee. Of particular note was the decision to approve the expenditure of up to $400,000 deemed necessary to commence immediate planning for major redevelopment of the Earth Sciences Building. During the discussion, it was noted that while the renovations needed were extensive, they were not as major as those of Athabasca and Assiniboia Hall. When questioned about the possibility of replacing the existing building rather than renovating it, Mr. Kennedy explained that the difference in cost was prohibitive. (The figures quoted were approximately $4 million to renovate as compared to approximately $16 million to replace.)

According to Board Chairman John Schlosser, the decision to set in motion the planning process for Earth Sciences is "something of a gamble," since no commitment has yet been received from Alberta Advanced Education on funding the necessary renovations. It is an important first step, however, "in order to express our concern for the safety of occupants of the building."

The University of Alberta

Mr. Schlosser expressed the hope that, by using the Earth Sciences experience as a model, a mechanism would eventually be established in the annual government granting scheme which would include specific funds for renovating University buildings.

Board members then heard from the Educational Affairs Committee. W.A.D. (Doug) Burns, in his capacity as Chairman of the 75th Anniversary Committee, presented a report on the year-long celebrations. He highlighted the many events which took place and set before the Board several recommendations with respect to the planning of future celebrations. A vote of thanks was extended to

Mr. Burns for the fine work done by his committee.

In his monthly report, President Horowitz referred to the increase in enrolment, noting an increase in full-time students of 8.85 percent and in part-time students of 8.49 percent.

Manning Award

Dr. Horowitz next paid tribute to the 1983 Ernest C. Manning Foundation Award winner. Kenneth Kasha, a graduate of this University (BSc 1957; MSc 1958), has been honored with the $75,000 cash award in recognition of his "outstanding innovation in the development of food crop yields to help feed a hungry world." Currently a member of the Crop Science Department at the University of Calgary, Dr. Kasha is recognized internationally for his work in breeding new strains of barley in one-half the time previously required.

The Manning Award was established to "stimulate and recognize innovation in Canada by honoring persons who have created and promoted, in an outstanding way, a new concept, process or product which is beneficial to Canada and society."

As per usual, the Board received for information reports from the Chancellor, General Faculties Council, the Students' Union, the Graduate Students' Association, and the Alumni Association. □

Construction Again on in Earnest

Construction-wise, it's in for a penny, in for a pound. Work on the University Gateway (actually a patio-type area with a dash of shrubbery and trees) began on 12 October. The project is at 110 Street and 87 Avenue. The intent is to complete the hard landscaping (sidewalks and meeting area) before winter sets in and leave the soft landscaping (planting of shrubs and trees) until spring.

Expansion of Computing Services' offices and terminal laboratories on the first two floors of the General Services Building will be completed by the end of November. Plans call for the overhead walkway between the Agriculture-Forestry Centre and GSB to be in use about mid-November.

The breezeway under the Henry Marshall Tory Building will be filled in and converted into two classrooms. This should also put an end to the leakage that has plagued the map collection under the breezeway.

Looking south, the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service Building is under construction at 83 Avenue and 114 Street. The $11 million, four-storey structure is being built by the Alberta

Public Works for the Red Cross, and should be finished about a year from now.

The building is not associated with this University or the University Hospital.

Further south, the main entrance to the University Farm will be changed from 116 Street and Belgravia Road to 60 Avenue and 115 Street. The change will be made in the spring. Five staff residences will be built at that time on the southeast side of the Farm.

A grounds greenhouse has been constructed but won't be used for some time yet. □

Longspoon Press: Voice of Prairie Poetry

If the numbers game has any part in the publishing world, then the Longspoon Press appears to be doing well. As the "little press" for prairie poets, established four years ago by members of the University's English Department, Longspoon now has a backlist of nearly twenty publications with seven more just released this fall. In fact, says Douglas Barbour, one of the founding members of the Press, the Press has been so successful that a part-time position has been created "just to keep up with the paperwork."

New releases from Longspoon include Arché/elegies by E.D. Blodgett, Professor and Chairman of Comparative Literature; Gramsci, by Wilfrid Watson, former Professor and Chairman of English; The Dream of Snowy Owls, by Monty Reid, twice a graduate (BA and MA) in English and Creative Writing from this University; and The Fells of Brightness: Some Fittes and Starts, by another U of A graduate, Jon Whyte.

The Longspoon Press backlist

(those books published over the past four years and still available) includes works by such well-known poets as bpNichol, Stephen Scobie (still a member of the Press although now on staff at the University of Victoria), Miriam Mandel, and Wilfrid Watson.

A non-profit venture, the Longspoon Press takes as part of its mandate the support of unknown poets, while relying on established writers to "keep the Press going."

Order forms for books published by Longspoon may be obtained from the Department of English, 3-5 Humanities Centre, telephone 432-2180. □

Killam Scholars Taken to Dinner

About sixty people attended a reception and dinner for Killam Scholars at the Faculty Club on 5 October. The event was organized by Larry Henderson, Secretary of the Killam Scholarship Committee. S.B. Woods, Associate Dean, Graduate Studies and Research, and Killam Estate Trustees Donald Byers and John Matthews were also present.

The Izaak Walton Killam

Memorial Fund for Advanced Studies was established by the late Dorothy J. Killam to "help in the building of Canada's future by encouraging advanced study in order to increase the scientific and scholastic attainments of Canadians." Mrs. Killam also wanted to help further the work of Canadian universities and to promote sympathetic understanding between Canadians and the peoples of other countries.

To ensure the availability of post-graduate scholarships for qualified applicants, Mrs. Killam bequeathed "very substantial" legacies to the Universities of British Columbia, Alberta, Calgary, Dalhousie University, the Montreal Neurological Institute, and the Canada Council.

The Killam endowments of 1965 were the first major endowments for The University of Alberta.

The first scholarships were granted in 1967. Since then nearly 3,000 have been granted. Among the recipients who hold appointments at The University of Alberta are Richard Flanagan, Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences; Ted Holdaway, Institutional Research and Planning; Lorna McCallum, President's Committee on Testing and Remediation; and Michael Stiles, Foods and Nutrition. □

Affiliation With Private Colleges Strong

Alberta's post-secondary education institutions treasure their autonomy but, unlike Garbo, do not want to be alone. Through affiliation agreements The University of Alberta has particularly solid ties with four private institutions—Camrose Lutheran College, Camrose; Canadian Union College, College Heights; Concordia College, Edmonton; and The King's College, Edmonton. The current composite calendar notes that Camrose Lutheran, Canadian Union, and Concordia are related to the University by affiliation agreements under which certain courses offered by the colleges will be accepted for University credit. Quite recently, an affiliation agreement between The King's College and the University was approved. The courses which will be recognized for credit were approved late last month by General Faculties Council's Committee on Admissions and Transfer.

(Formal affiliation agreements no longer exist between the University and the public colleges in Alberta. However, provisions have been made for the transfer of students from these and other post-secondary institutions in the province.)

Camrose Lutheran College

Affiliation with Camrose Lutheran was approved in 1959 for an initial period of one year. A one-year extension was then agreed upon on the recommendation of General Faculties Council. This was followed in 1961 by a three-year extension, subject to the appointment of "at least one more instructor."

A ten-page legal document was signed in 1970. It provided for the striking of an evaluation committee, consisting of members from the University, Camrose Lutheran College, and the Universities Co-ordinating Council, to review any facet of the agreement.

Camrose Lutheran College, founded in 1910, is a residential college which offers the first two years of university education. Its courses, principally in the liberal arts vein, are given the same recognition by other universities as are courses taken at The University of Alberta. Some 180 university courses are offered in fifteen different programs of study. Unless students indicate otherwise on their application forms, the College assumes that applicants plan to transfer to The University of Alberta.

Camrose Lutheran first offered second-year university courses in 1969-70. Along with the other private colleges it is waiting for government approval to move into the third and fourth years of instruction in selected disciplines and, possibly, degree-granting status. The nine-point grading system is in force.

The college has twelve major buildings on a forty-acre campus.

In accordance with the 1970 agreement, an evaluation committee was appointed with nominees from this University, Camrose Lutheran College, the Universities Co-ordinating Council, and Alberta Advanced Education and Manpower. The committee's activities included a site visit to the College by ten subject matter specialists from the University. In reporting to the Governors of the two institutions in May 1981, the committee recommended that Camrose Lutheran College and The University of Alberta renew their affiliation agreement, with "only such minor changes as are required to bring it into line with current organizational and legislative changes."

The approved agreement will be reviewed in 1986.

Canadian Union College

Canadian Union College sits on a hilltop about four kilometres northwest of Lacombe. The site was selected in 1909, two years after a group of Seventh-day Adventist laymen and church leaders established a school for their children near Leduc. A four-year theology program was initiated in 1945.

Affiliation with The University of Alberta in 1971 meant recognition for the first year of university studies in a number of Faculties. The affiliation was later broadened to include second-year courses.

The majority of the College's programs are four-year programs leading to the baccalaureate degree.

The evaluation committee, with Amy Zelmer as chairman, said that "because of the small number of students actually transferring to the University from Canadian Union College, it is not possible to analyse academic results of those students with any degree of reliability."

The committee toured the College some two years ago and while there were some reservations about laboratory facilities and library holdings, the recommendation was that the agreement be renewed. General Faculties Council concurred; the agreement will be reviewed again in 1986.

Concordia College

Concordia College is at 7128 Ada Boulevard. Founded in 1921, it is a co-educational liberal arts junior college.

In 1967, The University of Alberta granted Concordia's request for affiliation at the first-year university level. Second-year affiliation occurred eight years later.

Concordia emphasizes preliminary training for church professions but it also seeks to attract students who wish to start their university education on a small campus and eventually transfer to a degree-granting institution for upper level courses.

Affiliation with our University means that, as with the other three private colleges, instructors' qualifications, quality of instruction and facilities, matriculation requirements, entrance standards and examinations must meet standards set by the University.

Students can transfer to any of the eighteen Faculties directly.

Acceptance into quota programs hinges on the admission policy of the Faculty involved.

The affiliation agreement was renewed in 1981 and will be reviewed in 1986.

The King's College

If at first you don't succeed....

The King's College, a Christian liberal arts institution, sought affiliation with the University for quite some time but was turned down by General Faculties Council. In 1977, for example, rejection by Council was based on the reasoning that "no institution exists to be evaluated on academic grounds."

A joint review committee was formed in 1982. It met on four occasions; reviewed written material submitted by the College and the University; arranged for site visits to the College by subject matter specialists from the University; and arranged for a review of the academic records of students from The King's College who have transferred to The University of Alberta.

Among the findings of the site visitors were the following: ● The curriculum for first-year courses and some existing second-year courses seems to hold promise for transfer to the University for first and/or second year. ● The requirements for admission to the College are similar to those of the University. The College uses the nine-point system for grading. ● In general, the instructors are qualified to teach in the courses to which they have been assigned. Teaching loads seem comparable to those at the University; the normal load is five half-courses per year. ● Library holdings are generally acceptable although somewhat uneven in some of the newer areas of endeavor and in journal holdings in general science and education. Laboratory facilities are adequate for the courses currently being taught.

The King's College is not affiliated with a specific denomination, but is maintained by The King's College corporation whose 6,000 members are associated with various denominations. The College, enabled by The King's College Act 1979, offers courses in the arts, sciences, education and theology. It is located at 10766 97 Street; the full and part-time staff is in excess of forty people.

Prior to the signing of the affiliation agreement between the College and the University a thorough review was conducted. The Committee on Admissions and Transfer and then General Faculties Council's Executive Committee studied the situation from all sides and a special meeting of chairmen of the various departments of Arts and Science was held. Following a review by GFC, the agreement for an initial period of three years was signed early in 1983. A review is scheduled for 1986. As mentioned earlier, the list of transfer courses has been approved.

United Way Canvass Report

This report covers the period up to and including 12 October. During the first seven days of the official canvass, ninety-seven academic and non-academic staff members donated a total of $22,656 to the United Way. This amount represented 12.6 percent of the campaign objective of $180,000 set for the University Employee Group. In terms of the number of participants, units leading the way included Agriculture and Forestry, Arts, the Library, and Faculté Saint-Jean.

The United Way canvass continues throughout October.

Those not already contacted in person can expect to hear from a volunteer canvasser soon. It's up to you to decide if you wish to make a United Way donation and, if you do, how much you wish to give. For more information on the progress of the campaign, call Gordon Fearn, Department of Sociology, 432-4527. □

David Burge to Visit Department of Music

David Burge, internationally known pianist, lecturer, journalist, and teacher, will lecture on "Poetry, Witchcraft, Cosmology, and Being a Musician" in Thrust Theatre, Arts Building, 8 November at 8 p.m. The public lecture relates to his 31 October to 12 November stay in the Department of Music.

In a career spanning three decades, Burge has been heard around the world as a soloist, taught on three continents, and appeared on juries of numerous international competitions. He is particularly well-known for his performances and recordings of twentieth century music, and his more than thirty recordings encompass music by virtually every major composer for the piano in this century. His prize-winning column in Keyboard magazine is devoted to contemporary music, and he has published more than 100 articles on a variety of musical topics.

Alfred Fisher, Associate Professor in the Department of Music, and a student of Burge's at the University of Colorado in the 1960s, has described him as a "classically schooled, consummate artist (who) plays an absolutely enormous repertoire, and all by memory." Dr. Fisher's 1982 composition "Fantasy Pieces" was commissioned by the CBC for Burge, and performed widely.

Burge's recital on 1 November in Convocation Hall will include selections from Luigi Dallapiccola's "Quaderno Musicale di Annalibera" (1952), Robert Morris's "Exchanges" (1982) for piano and tape, Alfred Fisher's "Fantasy Pieces for Piano" (1982), and Akira Miyoshi's "Chaines" (1973).

Burge, who has been the Chairman of the Piano Department of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., since 1975, is the third distinguished visitor to the Department of Music. (The others were pianist Jorge Bolet and jazz trumpeter Bobby Shew.) □

With the blast of a siren and accompanying flashing red lights, President Horowitz officially opened the recent National Universities Week (NUW) with the President's Walk (he did hop down to lead the walkers after this photo was taken). NUW was celebrated with events intended to attract both staff and members of the wider community. Nobel Prize winners Edward Mills Purcell and Roald Hoffmann gave public lectures and Samuel Selvon, the University's writer-in-residence, read from his works. A mammoth auction and flea market raised more than $2,500 which will be used to establish an NUW scholarship. The week came to a close on 11 October with an address by Judge Raynell Andreychuk, former Chancellor of the University of Regina.

Researchers Awarded Grant to Study Fish Production

Two University researchers, Bill MacKay and Ellie Prepas, have been awarded an $11,000 grant by the Recreation, Parks and Wildlife Foundation to carry out biological studies of Narrow and Long lakes, which are situated twenty kilometres southwest of the town of Athabasca.

The focus of their study is to determine why these waters have poor recreational fisheries. Pike and perch, the main fish in the lakes, are found in very low numbers and are generally small for their age.

The Athabasca region is endowed with many productive lakes such as Baptiste, Amisk, Fawcett, and Skeleton. These large lakes have traditionally provided good recreational fishing. However, the size and number of fish produced also fluctuates considerably over time. The causes underlying such fluctuations are not known although many explanations have been put forward. The research team chose Narrow and Long lakes for the study because fish productions in these lakes has been poor for years. Attempts to stock Narrow Lake with Kokanee salmon in the 1960s and walleye in the 1950s were unsuccessful.

Fish production in lakes is directly linked to adequate amounts of appropriate foods. The ultimate source of food for most organisms in lakes is algae which in turn require certain nutrients, particularly phosphorus. In large lakes such as Amisk and Baptiste phosphorus and algal levels are high and the fish clearly respond to the rich food base. However, in lakes such as Narrow, phosphorus levels are low and some of the food base many not be accessible to fish. In the long term, the research team plans to test methods for increasing fish production in Narrow Lake. This project is based at the University's newly established Biological Research Station at Meanook. □

National Day of People's Republic of China Celebrated

An evening celebration party for the 34th National Day of the People's Republic of China was held in the Henry Marshall Tory Building on 1 October. The celebration was the first hosted by Chinese visiting scholars and graduate students on this campus. The flags of both nations were displayed symmetrically and the China National Anthem started the affair. Flowers, lights, folk music and refreshments provided a warm atmosphere of Sino-Canadian friendship.

Z.S. Wang, representing all the hosts, delivered a welcoming speech in which he thanked University administrators and staff for their valuable contributions. He praised the Sino-Canadian bonds of friendship which have been strengthened since the 1970s when China embarked on its Open Door policy.

It appears that more and more scholars and students from the PRC are coming to The University of Alberta. There are currently in excess of fifty, most of whom are in physics, chemistry, computing science, engineering and medicine. Only a few graduate students study in the humanities.

Wilf Allan, International Student Advisor, gave an answering address on behalf of the University administration. He extended congratulations to the hosts, noted the progression of enrolment of Chinese students in recent years, and commended the effort made by Chinese scholars and students on behalf of their motherland and the Sino-Canadian academic exchange.

The Canadian guests, including representatives of the Chinese Canadian community, sensed a wealth of friendship and a spirit of cooperation in relations with the Chinese people.

Joining Mr. Allan at the celebration were Stan Munro, Brian Evans, R.G. Glassford, and Eva Cherniavsky.

Following a Chinese dinner, some of the hosts performed songs and poems. □
